THE VOTERS HAVE SPOKEN AND THE WINNERS ARE . . .

Voting moved fairly quickly on Election Day in Grant County. Precinct workers reported being busy in the early morning and late afternoon, but mostly having a steady stream of voters throughout the day. Here a line forms at Grant County Middle School. Photo by Jamie Baker-Nantz

MOCK OR NOT Students learn political lessons

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

They aren't quite 18, but that did not stop local elementary students from making their vote heard.

Kindergarten and fifth graders were just two of the groups of students at Crittenden-Mt. Zion Elementary who headed to the polls Nov. 2 to choose a president.

Using a makeshift voting booth, one-by-one, the students circled the photo of the candidate they wanted for president.

After they cast their ballot into a baby wipe container, they received an American flag sticker, symbolizing that they voted.

In fifth grade, Republican challenger Gov. Mitt Romney handily beat President Barack Obama by a margin of 59 percent to 38 percent with 3 percent voting in the "other" category.

The outcome was the same for CMZ's kindergartners, although by a much slimmer margin.

Romney received 48 votes while Obama fell short with 40 votes.

Ten absent students could have shifted the outcome of the election, said Amanda Newman, CMZ Elementary kindergarten teacher.

"We thought that the mock election was important to give our students a voice in the world around them," Newman said. "We feel that our students need to be aware of what is going on in their world after all it is their future too. It was interesting to hear what they had to say about the two presidential choices. They were influenced by their peers and families."

GCHS students take on role of candidates

By Jamie Baker-Nantz

"Do you want a Socialist world or a Mitt Romney world?" asked Mitt Romney last week at Grant County High School.

OK, maybe it's wasn't the real Mitt Romney, but rather Stephen Fightmaster, a senior at GCHS, who was portraying Romney in a mock presidential debate.

Fightmaster, along with five other students represented Romney, Pres. Barack Obama (Eric Mann), Dr. Jill Stein (Brittnie Seibert), DID YOU KNOW?

Students at Grant County High School chose Mitt Romney as the next president. Voters in Kentucky followed the students' lead and also gave the nod to Romney on Nov. 6. Final elections results were not available at press time.

Roseanne Barr (Sarah Kellam), Gov. Gary Johnson (Jacob Parker) and Stewart Alexander (Ben Shipp) and presented their political stance on a variety of issues.

The students researched their candidates and then represented their views during the debate on Nov. 2.

"The purpose of the debate is to raise awareness of national politics and raise voter registration. It's not meant to be humorous or satirical," Lindsay Duke, a social studies teacher at GCHS, told the students in the audience.

Helping Hands needs help with food, clothing donations

By Jamie Baker-Nantz
Editor

If you receive a grocery sack on your door on Nov. 10, hungry people in Grant County are counting on you to fill it.

The annual Helping Hands food pantry drive, sponsored by several local churches, will kick off on Nov. 10 when volunteers will distribute empty grocery sacks throughout the county.

The volunteers will return on Saturday, Nov. 17 and collect the bags.

"This is vital, in terms of community support for us," said Wil Jones, a minister who serves on the board of directors for Helping Hands. "It's vital for us to have churches involved, which is part of how Helping Hands is organized."

Jones said Helping Hands assists 200 families with food and clothing each month, either at the organization's monthly food distribution held on the third Thursday of the month at Sherman Full Gospel Church or through the Helping Hands food pantry, which is open every Tuesday and Thursday on Barnes Road in Williamstown.

"We are seeing increasing needs across all fronts," Jones said. "Food and clothing are mainly what we provide to residents of Grant County and in some cases to families in a neighboring county."

Jones said Helping Hands doesn't have any particular criteria for helping people.

"When people come in and say they need are in need we accept that and do what we can," he said.

This is vital in terms of community support for us.

MASONS RECEIVE AWARDS - At the recent annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky Free and Accepted Masons and subordinate Lodges, Williamstown's Grant Lodge #85 was recognized with several awards. For the first time since it was chartered in 1827, members of the lodge received the Grand Master's Excellency Award for their high standards and attention to protocol. They were also recognized for their attendance and participation at the District Educational meetings for the first time since 1985. More recognition for the Lodge and its members was shown when Past Master Fred (Butch) Jernigan, Sr. (right), was chosen as District Deputy Grand Master for the 1944 Masons in District 18, which includes Grant, Boone and Kenton counties. With Butch Jernigan Sr. are Fred (Butch) Jernigan Jr. (left), Master of Grant Lodge for 2011; and Past Master/Secretary William Hill (standing), who was District Deputy Grand Master in 1992.

• What is a column?

A column is one person's opinion on any given issue, published as a regular feature of the newspaper. The staff of the Grant County News take turns writing a weekly column which is called Personally Speaking.

• What is an editorial?

An editorial is the newspaper's view on a particular issue. In developing editorials which are called Thumbs Up, Thumbs Down, employees of the newspaper consider what, in their collective view, is best for the community. Editorials are meant to suggest a course of action and to foster discussion on issues important to the community. They can also recognize or praise individuals and groups for community service and good works.

GUEST OPINION

This reader is tired of all the inaccuracies

After reading the "Guest Column" by Chuck Estridge that sounded like every television political commercial, I had to respond to the falsehoods and inaccuracies that the column contained.

Starting with his statement about the Occupy Wall Street movement being praised by the media and White House, these people were praised for their right to protest by both Democrats and Republicans. A CBS/Wall Street Journal poll showed 43 percent of those responding agreed with the right to protest vs. 27 percent that disagreed. A national congressional poll showed 59 percent agreed with the protest vs. 31 percent that disagreed. As a so-called constitutional scholar, Estridge should know that this is called Right to Assemble. Yes, there were tents, not enough toilets, etc., and unfortunately, knifings and rape. This has nothing to do with Occupy Wall Street movement's right to protest. There are "bad apples" in every bushel.

Estridge states that any politician who says the Romney/Ryan plan gives vouchers for healthcare is a liar. I don't know where he got that information, but the truth is that both the R/R plan and the Affordable Care Act (ACA) will give a defined amount of money (call it a voucher if you wish) to buy coverage from competing health care providers just as then-Governor Romney's plan did in Massachusetts. The R/R plan would keep the $700 billion in ACA costs that the Tea-publicans say the Obama plan is "stealing" from Medicare but does not give it back to seniors in any way. Instead, they will use it for tax cuts for the wealthy and deficit reduction. The Obama plan uses it to fund the uninsured. Both plans allow for Medicare to expand by the same amount of money. There is a big difference between proposing vouchers to limit how much the Federal Government spends on an existing health care entitlement (Medicare) as R/R proposes and using vouchers to create a new healthcare entitlement program, the ACA, as Obama has passed. One plan, the R/R plan, is a partial take-away of existing benefit guarantees from tens of millions of seniors; the other an expansion of health care guarantees to tens of millions of uninsured individuals.

Estridge's statement about American progressivism having its roots from Karl Marx is pure garbage. It actually started in the early 20th century with the likes of Teddy Roosevelt and is considered to be the middle class response to the vast changes brought about by modernization, growth of the railroads and large corporations, and the fear of corruption in American politics. Imagine that - corruption in American politics! It generally embraces the concepts of environmentalism and social justice. It has nothing to do with the premise of redistribution of wealth.

Using David Barton as a reference is another big problem. His book, The Jefferson Papers, was dropped by its Christian publisher after pastors, church leaders and a diverse group of scholars protested what he stated as fact. The publisher ultimately confirmed enough errors to drop the book and cancel it. Should we believe this man

Kim
BROCKHOFF

Guest Columnist

George W. Bush, who had 25 more than Bill Clinton. Yep, Obama started them and named them too. Just more inaccuracies in Estridge's comments.

His statement about Obama taking the work requirement out of the Welfare Reform bill signed by Bill Clinton is another complete inaccuracy. Obama gave the states the right to put more people to work by allowing the states leeway within the bill at the request of Republican Governors. If you look it up and do some research, you will see the request was signed by Republican Governors Romney, Jeb Bush, Mike Huckabee, Tim Pawlenty, Rick Perry and Mike Sanford (right before he ran off to Argentina with his mistress). Not exactly what Estridge wrote in his so-called facts. Estridge's statement that Obama told General Ginn that the National Anthem should be more like the song, "We Are the World," is a long dis-proven urban legend. Do the research - look it up - no fact whatsoever in this statement, just your typical Tea-publican urban legend.

"2016-Obama's America" is a very biased right-wing movie. It is full of the usual Tea-publican inaccuracies. On one hand, it promotes the theory that Obama is Muslim then talks about Obama listening to the anti-American rhetoric preached by Rev. Jeremiah Wright. How many Muslims would listen to sermons preached in a Methodist church?

In writing this letter, I'm not advocating a vote for any candidate. Just be knowledgeable when voting and remember that most all of these television ads are full of lies. I am just tired of all the inaccuracies, twisted sound bites, half quotes and Tea-publican so-called facts as expressed by Estridge and all politicians in general. All of this information is easily researched on the internet. It is all whether you want to learn the truth or believe lies and misrepresentations. All of what I have stated can easily be verified on internet sites like Politifact.com, TruthorFiction.com, or Snopes.com. or just "Google" it. Do the research. Get the truth.

(Editor's Note: Kim Brockhoff is a resident of Dry Ridge. His letter was submitted in October, but was inadvertently not published prior to Tuesday's election. The News apologizes for this oversight.)

A WORD FROM OUR READERS

Arsonists must have not been thinking

To the person or persons unknown:
What was in your mind the night you torched the 90-year-old building in Grant County Park?

I'm sure there were no thoughts of all the young people who attended that school, nor any interest that the building belonged to a distinguished group of historic structures that were built in the early 20th century with the help of a generous businessman and by the hard work and contributions of a community who wanted their children to have the opportunity for an education.

You couldn't have been thinking of how much work and fundraising went into rescuing the building from deterioration and then relocating it where all the community could visit and enjoy it as a part of Grant County history?

Did you have a thought that a relative or friend of yours might have assisted in or donated to that effort? That a family member of yours thought it was a worthwhile project, which you were determined to destroy?

You didn't care that precious and irreplaceable photographs, documents and keepsakes would be lost?

You certainly did not think of the families that donated historical documents, pictures, furniture and books to the museum only to learn they have been senselessly destroyed.

Did it occur to you that the result of your actions would be heart breaking to the men and women who donated hours and hours of work in creating a museum that housed numerous parcels and pieces of Grant County's past?

Did you consider how many people are affected by your wanton destruction? Not just the tears that are shed as we look through the rubble to see if anything can be salvaged but the sadness that the entire county shares as we realize there are those out there who will destroy what has been created, regardless of the pain they inflict.

Community food drive needs your support

In many ways our community is coming together to help Helping Hands give to our poor and disadvantaged neighbors. Many businesses are donating to help us purchase hams so people can prepare a good Thanksgiving meal.

Plans are in place so that those who take advantage of our monthly food distribution at Sherman Full Gospel Church can apply for a voucher to receive a free ham two days before Thanksgiving.

Several local churches are sponsoring a food drive for Helping Hands' pantry. On Nov. 10, they will distribute bags to many homes and neighborhoods. They are asking that these bags be filled with grocery items and placed on their door steps. Then, they will return one week later on Nov. 17 and pick them up. The food will be used to stock our pantry located on Barnes Road in Williamstown.

Two local banks are helping with a food and clothing drive. For each article donated, they will donate $1 to Helping Hands up to a maximum of $350. Hopefully, this will help a lot of people stay warm and fed during a cold winter.

Helping Hands is a local volunteer organization sponsored by many of our local churches. We are grateful for all of the hard-working volunteers and for all the community support. Helping Hands also operates a free food pantry and a free store open on Tuesdays and Thursdays on Barnes Road.

Helping Hands also operates the Thrift Store located on North Main Street in Williamstown.

The community's continued support is needed and appreciated.

DOWN AND DIRTY

Lady beetle invasion common this time of year

Some years are worse than others: I remember years when it was like a siege of lady beetles other years a few popped up here or there. Usually they sneak their way into our homes as a noticeable chill settles in. On sunny days they cling to the screen door on the south side of where I write. Presently they are displayed before me. I need not worry about them as they sun themselves; but the ones that collect indoors, well your best bet is a vacuum cleaner.

The perceived invasion is as simple as looking for a little warmth and protection from winter weather. The invader is not your average ladybug, it's an Asian cousin imported years ago by USDA Agricultural Research scientists. The USDA introduced the Asian lady beetle to the United States as a biological control against pear psylla and other soft-bodied insects. The Asian lady beetle, harmonia axyridis, is a voracious eater, just like our native lady beetle, but they have different wintering habits.

Lady Beetles

The Asian lady beetle is native to Japan and Korea where they winter over in cliffs in order to stay warm and protected from inclement weather. In the United States, in the absence of cliffs, the lady beetles flock to vertical structures, often light-colored, and always south or southwest facing. These vertical structures are usually our homes. They appear copper-colored and exhibit a great deal of variation within the species. Sometimes they appear with no spots, a few spots or many spots. Usually they are a copper or burnt orange color but they can appear black or red. Do not be surprised or confused by these variations.

If there are cracks, crevices are any point of entry the lady beetles find their way indoors collecting on walls and ceilings. As numbers increase so does the desire to get rid of them but it is somewhat problematic. Lady beetles are beneficial insects, eating other nuisance insects so killing them is environmentally irresponsible, however most people do not want lady beetles in their house all winter long.

Here are the options for control. Number one in beetle-proofing your home is to seal up crevices, install weather stripping around doors and checking for any other entry point. This will not only eliminate the number of insects that come in it will also reduce your utility bills in both summer and winter.

Annoying Little Bugs

Removing those beetles that have already made their way inside is best done with a broom or a vacuum. I know that it is asking nearly too much, but instead of killing them try sweeping them up and releasing them a good distance from your home. If you do crush them be ready for the stinky smell they will emit. And, don't forget to empty the vacuum bag if you vacuum dead ones up.

The problem with using chemical sprays is that it will only kill those insects that it comes in contact with and likely there are more beetles in unseen places. If you fumigate and kill those that are unseen then other insects that feed on the carcasses may be attracted to your home as a result.

Lady beetles feed on soft-bodied insects and will not do any structural damage to your home but those that may feed on them can. They are just hibernating in your home and will not bite (although some have insisted otherwise), sting, spread disease, infest your food or eat your clothing...they are just annoying. If you do choose to use chemicals do so in late September when you notice them on exterior surfaces before they enter the home.

GRANT COUNTY MIDDLE SCHOOL HILLBILLY HOEDOWN

WINNERS - The Grant County Middle School staff and students filled the gym for the annual GCMS Hillbilly Hoe-down. The first dance of the middle school year featured the crowning of the grade level 'Opossum Kings and Queens: Eighth Grade - Ethan Howe and Mason McClure, Seventh Grade - Ethan Dalzell and Lexie Stall, and Sixth Grade - Peyton Hudson and Josie Browning. Student winners were elected by their respective grade level classmates. The dance ended with the crowning of the teacher 'Opossum Kings and Queens. Teachers competed in a penny drive for the title where pennies and bills counted as votes for the teacher and silver money took away votes. All proceeds from the penny drive are used to purchase gifts for needy Grant County families during the holidays. Green and Salvage won the competition edging out first runner-up competitors Mason and Roberts.

Students participate in ECU NOVA Program

Among the 206 participants in Eastern Kentucky University's NOVA program, which serves students with academic potential who are the first in their family to pursue a four-year degree, are:

- Jessica Slone of Dry Ridge, senior English major.
- Brittany Lewis of Dry Ridge, freshman anthropology major.
- Seneca Sullivan of Dry Ridge, sophomore General Studies major.

The federally-funded TRiO Student Support Services program strives to increase the retention and graduation rates of first-generation college students at ECU through a variety of services and experiences: academic instruction; peer-to-peer mentoring; assistance with academic advising, orientation and registration; grant aid and scholarship opportunities; service learning opportunities career and graduate school advising; living-learning experiences; financial aid consulting; financial literacy training; and leadership development.

Of the 68 first-time freshmen who joined NOVA in Fall 2011, 53 returned for Fall 2012, a retention rate of 78 percent. More than 1,000 students have graduated as "NOVA Stars" since the program's inception in 1975.

A living-learning NOVA community in the university's McGregor Hall gives students a chance to connect to new NOVA friends as well as old friends for returning NOVA participants. It also gives the students opportunities for service learning and fundraising as well as chances to become involved in campus activities and events.

A team of seasoned NOVA students serve as mentors peer leaders to help younger NOVA students become successful in college and in life.

Chapter 9

The moon is my father, the sea is my mother;
I have a million brothers, I die when I reach land.
What am I?
Maybe it is the sun, Chloe said.
Yes, the son. That makes sense sons, boys, brothers, I explained.
Not s-O-n but s-U-n, Chloe said.
Oh!
Focus on, I die when I reach land, Dad suggested.
Doc had included a card for Dad so he knew the answer and where to go.
Finally, Chloe said, I know the riddle.
Wait, I shouted. Don't tell me. Is it a uh a mermaid?
Great guess, Woody, Chloe said, but I think it's a wave.
Yes, great guess, Woody, Dad said, but Chloe is correct. It's a wave, and we will find out soon how the riddle relates to today.
As we pulled into the marina at Lake Cumberland, our new trainer was waiting.
Hey, family! I'm your trainer, Julie. As you probably know, one of the many things Kentucky is known for is its abundance of water, Julie said, talking faster than anyone I had ever heard.
There are numerous lakes and rivers. Lake Barkley, Kentucky Lake, Cave Run Lake, Nolin Lake, Dale Hollow Lake; the list is endless. And there are just as many activities you can do on the lake, canoeing, kayaking, sailing, scuba diving, water skiing and wakeboarding. Any of those activities can build the muscles in your upper and lower body, and improve stability and flexibility.
It was obvious that Julie loved water sports. As she worked, she flexed her tanned arm muscles. I wondered whose muscles were bigger, mine or Julie's. I flexed my muscles to see. Mom must have noticed because she said, I don't think you're there yet, Woody, but it won't be long.

OK, family, put on these life jackets and let's wakeboard, Julie said. Wakeboarding is a cross between water skiing, snowboarding and surfing. You'll put both back feet, uh, paws, on the board while you use your two front paws to hold the tow rope. Once you're set, the boat will pick up speed and travel about 20 miles an hour. Your goal is stay on the board and ride the waves, dude, Julie said as she looked at me. It was the first time she had taken a breath in 10 minutes and the first time anyone had called me dude. My tanned muscles must have inspired the cool name.
Once you get really good, you can start doing some tricks like grabs, spins and invert, Julie said. For now, just stay on the board. OK, everyone in the motor boat. You're up first, dude, she said, pointing to me.
Uh, Miss Julie, shouldn't you demonstrate first? I suggested as my family got in the boat, also looking nervous.
Nothin, to it, dude. You'll be fine.
I put my back paws on the board and held the tow rope with my front paws. I must have been cold because I was shaking like a leaf. My knees wobbled, my teeth chattered and my tail stayed tucked.
And if I didn't know better, I would have thought I was in Florida. I had no idea we could do something like this right here in our own state. I was excited knowing that after working hard all week our family could spend our weekends traveling in Kentucky and participating in all these adventures... WHOA.

The boat took off, and the next thing I knew this dude was riding the waves. After a few seconds, my body relaxed. I stood up a little straighter and was even able to look around the lake. My family watched me closely while Julie divided her time between looking at me and driving the boat. Julie must have thought I was doing well because the boat started to go faster.
I'd seen how someone on TV had performed tricks, so I decided to try something. I didn't know if it was an actual trick, but I leaned my body toward the water and let it coast along. Julie increased the speed, and the next thing I knew I had lost the tow rope and the board.

Find a Kentucky map. How many different lakes and rivers can you locate? List the names of the lakes and rivers you locate in Kentucky.
Now open up your local newspaper. Do you see any stories about wakeboards or water skiing equipment? Can you locate any boats for sale? Circle all the ads with boats or water equipment for sale.
Find the most expensive boat for sale. What is the price? If everyone in your class put their money together to purchase the boat, how much would it cost each person?
Julie, the trainer, called Woody Dude. Open up a thesaurus and look up the word boy. What are other synonyms for boy? What about girl?
Work and dream like a big dog!

The Grant County Elementary Cross Country team, sixth grade and under, coached by Michael Spratt, consists of Molly Howell, Jemison Beavers, Joel McCain, Benjamin Spratt, Moriah McCain, Luke Dawalt, Bradley Perkins, Micah McCain, Kyle Stephens, Makayla Centers and Marie Young. RACE TO THE FINISH

The Grant County Elementary Cross Country team sent several runners to the annual cross country KTCCCA Meet of Champions, which is equivalent to a state championship for elementary teams, on Oct. 27 held at Masterson Station Park in Lexington.

Grant County had participants in these categories: middle school (7th and 8th) boys and girls; 6th grade and under boys and girls, and 4th grade and under boys and girls.

Of Grant County's participants, the following runners received individual honors:

- 4th and under girls (nearly 250 runners): - Moriah McCain, 39th place.
- 6th and under boys (nearly 400 runners) - Benjamin Spratt, 3rd place (podium position) and Bradley Perkins, 16th place, GCMS.

The 6th and under boys team finished in 10th place overall at the meet.

This team has also had success at several other meets including:

- Grant County Invitational - 2nd place
- Mason County Invitational - 1st place
- Grant County Frosh/Middle/Elementary - 1st place
- Pendleton County Invitational - 1st place

- Williamstown Invitational - 1st place
- Area 5 Regional Championship - 1st place
- St. Henry Invitational - 1st place

The 6th grade and under team, boys and girls, also ran in several other 8th and under middle school events.

"It has been a pleasure to work with these talented student athletes," said Coach Michael Spratt.

Bradley Perkins and Benjamin Spratt lead Grant County's 6th grade and under team to the team championship at the Area 5 Elementary Championship race.

BIG BLUE MADNESS - On Oct. 12, Lexie Moore, 8, competed in a free throw competition at the University of Kentucky's Big Blue Madness at Rupp Arena. She earned the chance to compete by placing first in a free throw competition held during a John Calipari Basketball Camp at Ryle High School. She missed winning by only one shot. She lost in the second round of a sudden death shoot-off.

ATHLETES OF THE WEEK

FOOTBALL PLAYER OF THE WEEK

is sponsored by Carolyn Thompson of State Farm Insurance.

FOOTBALL PLAYER OF THE WEEK - Derek Sutherland, a junior at GCHS, was chosen as Player of the Week for his performance against Conner (Oct. 20). He is a running back/linebacker. Coach Kevin Siple presented him with the game ball.

FOOTBALL PLAYER OF THE WEEK - Marcus Robinson was selected as Player of the Week for Oct. 27. Robinson is a junior and plays as a defensive back for the GCHS Braves football team. Coach Kevin Siple presented the award.

Elizabeth Robinson, Hayley Leach and Summer Dearing get out to a quick start at the Class 3A Region 5 Championship on Nov. 3. Leach and Dearing earned individual spots in the state meet. Photos by Dave Clark

Jordan Rose earned a lone individual qualifier spot for the KHSAA State Meet on Nov. 10 at the Kentucky Horse Park.

GCHS sends 3 runners to state

The Grant County High School Cross Country team traveled to Ryle High School for the Class 3A Region 5 Championships on Nov. 3. Grant County had three qualify for the KHSAA State Cross Country Championship that will be held on Nov. 10 at the Kentucky Horsepark.

Summer Dearing and Hayley Leach took two of the five individual qualifier spots that go to the five highest placing individuals that are not on one of the top five qualifying teams in the girls event. There were five spots available because there were 10 teams that competed in the regional championship. Grant's girls finished seventh out of 10 teams in the final team results.

Jordan Rose will be the Braves' lone entrant at this year's boy's state championships. He claimed the fifth and final individual qualifier position. The Braves competed as a team to claim one of four team spots available because there are only nine boys teams in their region. The Braves finished sixth as a team.

UPCOMING EVENTS:

Holiday assistance
deadline is Nov. 9

The Grant County Holiday Assistance Program in collaboration with Northern Kentucky Community Action Commission is accepting registration for holiday assistance for children in Grant County.

This year registration will be accepted from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. through Nov. 9 at the Grant County Office on Main Street in Williamstown.

Due to the numbers of those in need and of those donating registration deadline is at 4:30 p.m. on Nov. 9. Those registering will need to bring proof of Grant County residency, proof of income and the child's information.

For any questions, contact NKCAC-Grant County at 859-824-4768.

Williamstown Baptist to deliver free Thanksgiving meals

The Williamstown Baptist Church will be delivering Hope Thanksgiving Day meals to shut-ins and those in need throughout Grant County.

In 2011, this project reached over 600 people in the community, the largest number since the ministry started. The meals will be delivered by noon on Thursday, Nov. 22.

To sign up for a hot meal, call the Williamstown Baptist Church office at 859-824-4102 and ask for Diane. Reservations must be made no later than Friday, Nov. 16.

Donations are welcome. Send checks to Williamstown Baptist Church, 214 N. Main, Williamstown, Ky. 41097

HELP

There are about 20 churches of the more than 70 in the county who are actively involved in Helping Hands.

During the Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday, several school organizations also lend a hand to Helping Hands by holding food and clothing drives.

"We work together and this is a very important partnership," Jones said.

This year, Helping Hands is accepting sign ups for hams for the holidays. Jones said those who utilize the monthly food distribution can apply for a voucher to receive the hams, which will be available two days before Thanksgiving.

For more information about Helping Hands, call 859-823-0286.

Debbie Stone and Linda Dunn shop at Dixie Treasures during the third Cash Mob held Nov. 1. The next Cash Mob event will be Nov. 15 and begins at 5 p.m. at Marlene's in Williamstown. For more information, email: kstone@grantky.com.

CASH MOB RETURNS NOV. 15

The fourth of six planned Cash Mobs takes place on Thursday, November 15. The meeting location will be next to Marlene's on Main Street in Williamstown. Shoppers should gather between 5 and 5:30 p.m. to learn of the secret shopping destination and enjoy refreshments provided by Marlene McComas of Marlene's.

Anyone can participate by committing to spend at least $10 at the mystery shopping locations that will be announced after 5 p.m. at the meeting site.

The three previous Cash Mobs have helped small local businesses and the local economy with approximately $1,000 being spent during each event.

"I have been told that this is an excellent idea," said Candace Faulkner, who coordinates the events with Grant County News publisher, Ken Stone. "But, it is only an excellent idea if people show up and participate."

The first Cash Mob, in Williamstown, had 38 shoppers. The second Mob, in Crittenden, had 16 shoppers. The Nov. 1, Mob in Dry Ridge had 21 shoppers.

"Those attending the event have been very pleased with the events. Many had never been in the small local businesses that were being mobbed," said Faulkner.

"We keep the shopping location/s secret to build interest and excitement," said Faulkner. "Wouldn't it be great for local businesses and our community if more people participated."

The shopping experience can be done in a matter of minutes or at a leisurely pace. For those short on time, they can skip the meeting area and the food and go directly to the shopping location.

The last two Cash Mobs are scheduled for Nov. 29 and Dec. 13. For more information, call 859-803-5219 or email: kstone@grantky.com.

Newman said the teachers talked about how voting was a personal choice that each person had to make based on what they believed was the right decision.

Although they did not go into the stances of the two presidential candidates, teachers did encourage the students to talk to their families about the election and their views.

"I think that my students understood the election and they were so proud of themselves after they voted in our voting booth," Newman said. "It was neat to see how some students talked openly about who they voted for and others were quiet about their decision. We made the day special by letting students dress patriotic in red, white, and blue or dress up. We even had one student that said that he dressed up like Obama. He had on a dress shirt with a tie. I played patriotic songs and we sang 'America the Beautiful.'"

Williamstown Elementary got into the election spirit as well by casting their ballots on Ipads, while voting on student council members.

To make the election more realistic, each grade level was given one electoral vote and whoever had the most votes for that grade was the representative for that grade.

"This provided a great conservation piece for the students to have a better understanding of how the actual process works," said Deanna Wynn, WES fifth grade teacher. "The electoral voting is one of the hardest concepts for the students to understand."

Romney won the popular vote, but Obama was re-elected by capturing the electoral vote at Williamstown Elementary.

In kindergarten, two classes chose Obama while one went with Romney while the four first-grade classes were split between the two candidates.

Romney had a 2-1 edge in second-grade classes, but Obama won the third-grade electoral vote by the same margin.

Fourth graders chose Obama 2-1 as well with Romney sweeping all three fifth-grade classes.

With the electoral vote, Obama won 3-2, but in the popular vote, Romney won 201 votes to 162 with 27

"I was surprised with how the results actually turned out," Wynn said. "I planned on just going by popular vote. However, once the votes started coming in, I noticed that the data was going to be a little different."

Throughout the experience, the students learned everything from branches of government to primaries and discussed major topics such as health care, education and the economy.

"Since I have been old enough, I have voted," Wynn said. "I am very passionate about doing your civic duty to better your city, state and country. That is your one chance to have a say. This project gets the students involved in what is going on in the world around them. This project lets them practice voting and it encourages them to participate in their civic duty."

"It will be interesting to see how the actual election will turn out," she said. "I am very excited and a lot of my students are excited as well."

The mock election wasn't the only real-life experience the elementary students participated in.

For the first time, WES also held a debate during school for the two candidates for student council — Emma Gutman and Cody Wolfe.

Real issues impacting students, including fundraising, bullying, the use of electronic devices in class and attendance, were discussed between the candidates and fourth and fifth graders listened.

Principal David Poer, who moderated the debate, made sure the students knew the importance of voting for real when they were old enough.

"As a citizen, we have a great and grand privilege to vote for who we think is the best person," Poer said to the students. "Not everyone can say that."

Eric Mann gives his opening statement as Pres. Barack Obama, while Steven Fightmaster, portraying Mitt Romney, listens during the Grant County High School mock presidential debate on Nov. 2.

Each candidate was given two minutes to make an opening statement, followed by a question, answer and rebuttal period. Each was then given additional time for a closing statement.

Romney (Fightmaster) attacked Obama on his four years in office.

"With President Obama, it's borrow, tax and spend. He does it more and more. When will it end?" Fightmaster asked.

Alexander (Shipp) proposed "turning back and giving to the 99 percent." His platform boasted free education, social programs and health care.

Stein (Seibert), a member of the Green Party, said America could not "afford four more years of Wall Street bailouts."

Johnson (Parker), the former governor of New Mexico and a member of the Libertarian Party, said "less government interference" was what the country needed.

Barr (Kellam), a member of the Peace and Freedom Party, said she understood the needs of the average American family.

"I love this country with all my heart and I'm concerned for my grandchildren's future. I may not be one of the working class, but I'm for the working class," Barr said.

Candidates responded to questions about immigration, the economy and education.

At times, the candidates' answers drew laughs from the other students, especially when Johnson suggested the legalization of marijuana could fix a multitude of issues.

"I just don't believe as Gov. Johnson does that legalizing marijuana is the answer to all of our country's problems. It's not the answer for immigration, the economy and especially education," said Romney.

"No, marijuana is not my solution to education," Johnson agreed.

Obama proposed he was the right candidate for "having someone fight for the little man."

"If you believe helping those down on their luck first and if you believe in taking our country forward . . . If you believe we're better off four years ago in the economy and foreign mess, you already know who to vote for," Obama said.

Barr closed the debate by telling the students she would represent them in Washington.

"Think about what you want. What do you want for your grandchildren? Do you want someone who will represent you all? I'm for you all. I've said it 60 billion times today," she said.

Following the debate, students were given ballots.

Romney won with 32 percent of the vote, while Stein pulled in 20 percent, followed by Obama with 17.5 percent, Barr with 13.5 percent, Johnson with 11 percent and Alexander with 5 percent.

The debate can be viewed on the Grant County Schools web site at www.grant.kyschools.us.
